Foreword

It is the view of the ENCJ that the European judicial area must be built on a shared judicial culture created among members of the judiciary using the European Charter of Fundamental Rights and other relevant European texts to promote the core values of the judicial profession by discussing and promulgating common professional ethics, the rule of law and key principles for an independent, impartial and professional judiciary thereby promoting the mutual trust necessary to make the common judicial area a reality. Furthermore ENCJ aims to promote Councils for the Judiciary, as a guarantee for the independence of the judiciary and support to the development of quality management mode in the courts, for the benefit of citizens.

In this guide you will find information on the European Network of Councils for the Judiciary and its role in the European area of Justice, the main declarations that the ENCJ has adopted on topics such as the independence and accountability of the judiciary, judicial ethics and standards for the selection and appointment of judges. Furthermore, the guide provides detailed information on the individual Councils for the Judiciary members of the ENCJ.

We hope that the content of this guide will afford you the opportunity to gain a better understanding of the work of the ENCJ and its continuing role in furthering the common area of justice.

National judges are increasingly becoming European judges. Their contribution to the integration process, to consolidating justice throughout Europe and the importance of democracy within the Union is vital. It is also thanks to the Judiciary that the "Community of law" and of rights is developing and strengthening, along with the Community's economic, monetary and cultural aspects. All this is possible thanks to the vital pillar upholding the state of law being the independence and autonomy of the judiciary.

ENCJ at all times strives to achieve an independent judiciary to form the basis of democracy in Europe and a prerequisite for maintaining and enhancing mutual confidence between the judicial authorities of the various member states to assist with the smooth cross border cooperation in the common areas of justice based on the principle of mutual recognition as enshrined in Article 81 and 82 TFEU.

The ENCJ was formally established in Rome in 2004 and consists, to date, of the twenty Councils for the Judiciary and similar institutions presently in existence in the European Union. Membership of the ENCJ is open to all autonomous national institutions of the member states of the European Union which ensure the final responsibility for the support of the judiciary in the independent delivery of justice.

The creation of the European Network of Councils for the Judiciary was intended to fill a gap in the EU integration process. Judiciaries operate without any major differences with regard to their internal operating environment, i.e. they are autonomous and independent of any other power. This is the same whether within individual states or in Europe as a whole. It is therefore quite natural to ensure as part of this process not only coordination among ministers and judicial cooperation among individual judges, but also collective cooperation among the judiciaries' self-governing bodies. Moreover there is a common understanding that as the European Union is developing so is the role of judges, both as national judges and as judges in and of the European Union. More obligations and duties are being placed on the judiciary. Consequently, there is a need for more judicial co-operation.

The principal objectives of the ENCJ are:

- i. The improvement of cooperation between and good mutual understanding amongst the Councils for the Judiciary and the Members of the Judiciary of both the European Union member states and candidate member states and this includes, inter alia, exchange of experience in relation to how the judiciary is organised and how the judicial function is carried out across the European Union and the provision of expertise, experience and proposals to European Union institutions and other national and international organisations.

- ii. The reinforcement of an independent yet accountable judiciary and the promotion of best practices to enable the judiciary to deliver timely, effective and quality justice for the benefit of all citizens.

Membership of the ENCJ brings together national Councils for the judiciary and has the benefit through dialogue of revealing strengths and weaknesses within their operation thus, assisting Councils in reflecting on their own judicial systems and in identifying areas for improvement, and thus contributing to the development of a European Judicial Culture.

Each year as part of its modus operandi important relevant topics are discussed in Project groups leading to appropriate declarations of best practice in areas such as Judicial Ethics, Appointment and Promotion of Judges, Judicial Reform, Evaluation and Irremovability of Judges, Public and Mutual Confidence and Independence and Accountability.

ENCJ considers that the identification of minimum judicial standards (and relevant indicators) for the justice sector will further the approximation of the judicial systems in the Europe and thus contribute to the attainment of a European Judicial Culture.

The ENCJ emphasizes the following minimum standards for the justice sector:

Citizens are entitled to access to an open and transparent system of justice, and to clearly reasoned judgements handed down in public.

Judges shall be selected and promoted on the basis of merit subject to an established criterion in a transparent manner.

Judges' recruitment, appointment or promotion ought to be placed in the hands of a body independent of government in which a relevant number of members of the judiciary are directly involved and that the membership of this body should comprise a majority of individuals independent of government influence.

Judges shall be bound to perform the judicial function with integrity according to the applicable professional standards in the interests of justice and society.

Judges' training shall be carried out by an adequately funded autonomous body working to guidelines as promoted by the Council for the Judiciary

Judges' remuneration must remain at all times commensurate with their professional responsibilities and should be constitutionally guaranteed in law

The judiciary should be involved in judicial reform.

Councils/ judiciaries should be proactive in the promotion of a better understanding of the role and the work of the judiciary to ensure public confidence in the justice system.

Councils/ judiciaries and judges must be provided with all necessary support and to up-to-date resources including appropriately qualified staff and modern technology.

Executive and/or Legislative Powers have a duty to provide sufficient funds for the operation of a council for the judiciary and the judicial system. The budget must be prepared in a transparent manner and duly implemented.

The ENCJ has long come to recognize the absolute necessity for the benefit of every citizen of Europe that there is in place an effective quality system of justice which contributes to social peace, economic development and security for all interested parties.

ENCJ VISION

The ENCJ is and will continue to be:

- a unique body representing the judicial perspective to European institutions
- the centre of a vibrant forum for the Judiciary across Europe
- the main support for independent Councils for the Judiciary all to enable the Judiciary to optimise the timely and effective delivery of Justice for the benefit of all.

The ENCJ can look back with pride on its achievements since its formal establishment and looks forward with new ideas in continuing its role in furthering the common area of justice for the benefit of all citizens.

III. Councils for the Judiciary in Europe

A fundamental cornerstone of any democratic society is the principle of the separation of powers which ensures that the judiciary can perform their responsibility to deliver independent quality justice.

It has to be a pre-condition that in exercising the judicial function the judiciary are autonomous from the executive and legislative power. This is necessary to guarantee full protection for the basic rights of the citizen.

Each Council for the Judiciary has its origin in the development of its own legal system which is deeply rooted in a historical, cultural and social context but nevertheless all Councils for the Judiciary share common experiences and challenges and are governed by the same general principles.

In order to achieve and protect this independence and autonomy, self-governance and the independent organisation and management of justice systems and the judiciary is a significant factor. The appointment of judges, career paths, disciplinary systems and procedures, structure and organisation of individual offices all combine to define the individual status of the judge and outline the guarantees for their actions providing the conditions for exercising jurisdiction independently. Justice systems must be effective in providing open access to justice for all citizens and the governing bodies (Councils for the Judiciary) that protect that access to justice have to be independent.

There are a variety of ways in which the independence is ensured. In most countries law, statutes or ordinances guarantee the independence of the judiciary. However it is imperative that there are controls which regulate and monitor that effectiveness of the implementation of the law, statutes or ordinances. For this reason many European States have established independent autonomous bodies which monitor compliance with the principle of separation of powers and defend the values of the independence of judges and the sovereignty of judicial functions. In some countries this is undertaken through a single body being a Council for the Judiciary. In other countries these functions are undertaken by a number of different separate organisations that have powers to administer and financially manage the judicial operation.

Councils for the Judiciary play a key role in the administration of justice, interacting with society at all levels. A considerable number of Councils for the Judiciary are protected by statute within their respective jurisdictions, but in this regard the ENCJ is of the view that where possible Councils should be protected by being given constitutional status and this has occurred in a number of jurisdictions. As guarantors of judicial independence, member states are to be encouraged to afford Councils the benefit of constitutional protection as the optimum means of ensuring the independent exercise of justice as well as the independent expression of the opinions of each individual Council.

The Council for the Judiciary organisations are in various ways responsible for the support of the judiciary in the independent delivery of justice. Characteristic for all organisations is their autonomy and their independence of the executive and legislative power. Although there are different structures for ensuring judicial independence all Councils nevertheless are governed by the same general principles. Some Councils are competent with regard to career decisions for judges, selection, recruitment and evaluation and disciplinary actions whereas other, in general more recently established Councils have competencies that include policy and managerial tasks in the fields of efficiency and quality, budget and budgeting procedures.

Consiglio Superiore della Magistratura at Piazza dell'Indipendenza, Rome, Italy

It is the view of the ENCJ that self-governance of the judiciary guarantees and contributes to strengthening the independence of the judiciary and the efficient administration of justice.²

However to safeguard effective self-governance there are a number of requirements:

- 1) judicial administration must be professionalised;
- 2) such governance must be realistic, modern and participatory;
- 3) the Judicial Council should promote the efficiency and quality of justice;
- 4) the accountability of the judiciary can in no way call into question the independence of the judge when making individual judicial decisions.

In order to ensure the autonomy and independence of the Council and therefore its function of guaranteeing the independence of judges, adequate representation of the judiciary within the Council for the Judiciary is necessary. Only in this way is the real independence of the judicial function promoted and assured, and the Council is rendered free from political interference and its autonomy is reinforced.

It is the view of the ENCJ that the composition of the Council is:

- (1) Exclusively of members of the judiciary or alternatively a combination of members of the judiciary and other persons.
- (2) But that where the composition is mixed, the Council should be composed of a majority of members of the judiciary or alternatively, not less than 50%.
- (3) In any case whether there is a mixed composition or not) the judicial members of the Council (however appointed) must act as the representatives of the entire judiciary.

² 2008 ENCJ Budapest Declaration: self-governance of the Judiciary: Balancing Independence and Accountability

- (4) Where the Council for the Judiciary has representation from judges and a combination of the ranks of legal, academic and civil society clearly the inclusion of lay members is of merit in avoiding perceptions of self-interest and self-protection as well as giving the judiciary greater legitimacy and reinforcing their role as guardians and defenders of the basic rights of each citizen.

To maintain this important structure ENCJ recognises that mechanisms for selecting judge members must guarantee that there is no interference by other powers - the appointment must be left, directly or indirectly, to the judges, using democratic methods that ensure a “pluralist” nature of the council representation and ample legitimisation in relation to the body of judges.

To guarantee that the Council can act independently a Council for the Judiciary must manage its budget impartially from the executive power. As a necessary consequence of independence Judicial Councils should be accountable for their activities by submitting periodic and public reports which transparently show the principles on which they perform their functions and the outcomes from activities.

Furthermore ENCJ believes that Councils for the Judiciary or other independent or autonomous bodies should have the responsibility and power to undertake a range of differing tasks under the authority of a Council for the Judiciary or of one or more independent and autonomous bodies.

These tasks are:

- appointment and promotion of judges;
- training;
- discipline and judicial ethic;
- administration of the courts;
- finances of the judiciary;
- performance management of the judiciary;
- processing of complaints from litigants;
- protection the image of justice;
- formulation of opinions on judicial policies of the State;
- setting up a system for evaluating the judicial system;
- drafting or proposing legislation concerning the judiciary and/or courts;
- ensuring that the independence of the judiciary should be guaranteed in the Constitution in states with a written Constitution.

Councils for the Judiciary in Europe should actively assist each other when requested in improving the way justice is delivered.

4.2 SOFIA DECLARATION ON JUDICIAL INDEPENDENCE AND ACCOUNTABILITY (2013)

- (i) An independent and accountable judiciary is essential for the delivery of an efficient and effective system of justice for the benefit of the citizen and is an important feature of the rule of law in democratic societies.
- (ii) The judiciary must be accountable, comply with ethical guidelines and be subject to an impartial disciplinary system.
- (iii) Reductions in government expenditure cannot be allowed to undermine judicial independence.
- (iv) Financial stability, security of tenure and administrative independence are necessary safeguards for an independent and impartial judiciary.³
- (v) The protection of judicial independence can appropriately be achieved by a properly functioning council for the judiciary or a similar independent body to consider and determine or to make recommendations to government on all matters relevant to judicial remuneration and conditions.
- (vi) It is the essential task of the ENCJ and all Councils for the Judiciary to maintain and strengthen the independence of the Judiciary, especially when it is threatened.
- (vii) The prudent convention that judges should remain silent on matters of political controversy should not apply when the integrity and independence of the judiciary is threatened. There is now a collective duty on the European judiciary to state

³The Council of Europe's Recommendation CM/rec (2010) 12 of the Committee of Ministers to Member States on independence, efficiency and responsibilities of judges states that:-

- "[e]ach state should allocate adequate resources, facilities and equipment to the courts to enable them to function in accordance with the standards laid down in Article 6 of the Convention and to enable judges to work efficiently
- and "[j]udges' remuneration should be commensurate with their profession and responsibilities, and be sufficient to shield them from inducements aimed at influencing their decisions", and "[s]pecific legal provisions should be introduced as a safeguard against a reduction in remuneration aimed specifically at judges".

clearly and cogently its opposition to proposals from government which tend to undermine the independence of individual judges or Councils for the Judiciary.

(viii) In the circumstances and taking into account submissions made by members and observers to the General Assembly of the ENCJ held in Sofia on the 6th and 7th June, 2013, the ENCJ calls for an independent European rule of law mechanism, respecting the diversity of justice systems, which inter alia will assist in the protection of the independence of the judiciary and in ensuring the promotion of an effective justice system and growth for the benefit of all citizens.

4.3 DUBLIN DECLARATION ON STANDARDS FOR THE RECRUITMENT AND APPOINTMENT OF MEMBERS OF THE JUDICIARY (2012)

The General Assembly of the ENCJ, meeting in Dublin on 9-11 May 2012, approves the standards and indicators as laid down in the ENCJ reports of 2010/2011 and 2011/2012 on minimum judicial standards:

- a) regarding the recruitment, selection, appointment and (where relevant) the promotion of members of the judiciary;
- b) regarding the competent body to decide on the recruitment, selection, appointment and (where relevant) the promotion of members of the judiciary.

I. INDICATORS OF MINIMUM STANDARDS REGARDING THE RECRUITMENT, SELECTION, APPOINTMENT AND (WHERE RELEVANT) THE PROMOTION OF MEMBERS OF THE JUDICIARY

1. Judicial appointments should only be based on merit and capability. There requires to be a clearly-defined and published set of selection competencies against which candidates for judicial appointment should be assessed at all stages of the appointment process.
2. Selection competencies should include intellectual and personal skills of a high quality, as well as a proper work ethic and the ability of the candidates to express themselves.
3. The intellectual requirement should comprise the adequate cultural and legal knowledge, analytical capacities and the ability independently to make judgments.
4. There should be personal skills of a high quality, such as the ability to assume responsibility in the performance of his/her duties as well as qualities of equanimity, independence, persuasiveness, sensibility, sociability, integrity, unflappability and the ability to co-operate.
5. Whether the appointment process involves formal examination or examinations or the assessment and interview of candidates, the selection process should be conducted by an independent judicial appointment body.

6. Where the appointment process includes assessment based on reports and comments from legal professionals (such as practising judges, Bar Associations, Law Societies etc) any such consultation must remain wholly open, fair and transparent, adding that the views of any serving judge or Bar Association should be based on the relevant competencies, should be recorded in writing, available for scrutiny and not based on personal prejudice.
7. Whilst the selection of judges must always be based on merit, anyone appointed to judicial office must be of good character and a candidate for judicial office should not have a criminal record, unless it concerns minor misdemeanors committed more than a certain number of years ago.
8. Diversity in the range of persons available for selection for appointment should be encouraged, avoiding all kinds of discrimination, although that does not necessarily imply the setting of quotas per se, adding that any attempt to achieve diversity in the selection and appointment of judges should not be made at the expense of the basic criterion of merit.
9. The entire appointment and selection process must be open to public scrutiny, since the public has a right to know how its judges are selected.
10. An unsuccessful candidate is entitled to know why he or she failed to secure an appointment; and there is a need for an independent complaints or challenge process to which any unsuccessful applicant may turn if he or she believes that he/she was unfairly treated in the appointment process.
11. If the Government or the Head of State plays a role in the ultimate appointment of members of the judiciary, the involvement of a Minister or the Head of State does not in itself contend against the principles of independence, fairness, openness and transparency if their role in the appointment is clearly defined and their decision-making processes clearly documented, and the involvement of the Government or the Head of State does not impact upon those principles if they give recognition to decisions taken in the context of an independent selection process. Besides, it was also defined as a Standard in this field that where whoever is responsible for making the ultimate appointment (the Government or Head of State) has the right to refuse to implement the appointment or recommendation made in the context of an independent selection process and is not prepared to implement the appointment or recommendation it should make known such a decision and state clearly the reason for the decision.
12. Where promotion of members of the judiciary is based on the periodical assessments of professional performance the assessment process must be conducted according to the same criteria and with the same guarantees as those provided for the initial selection and appointment process (i.e. it should be independent, fair, open and transparent, and on the basis of merit and capability) and should be based on the judge's past performance.

II. INDICATORS OF MINIMUM STANDARDS IN RELATION TO THE COMPETENT BODY TO DECIDE ON THE RECRUITMENT, SELECTION, APPOINTMENT AND (WHERE RELEVANT) THE PROMOTION OF MEMBERS OF THE JUDICIARY

1. The procedures for the recruitment, selection or (where relevant) promotion of members of the judiciary ought to be placed in the hands of a body or bodies independent of government in which a relevant number of members of the judiciary are directly involved and that the membership of this body should comprise a majority of individuals independent of government influence.
2. The judiciary must not necessarily have an absolute majority membership on such a selection and appointment body, since in some of the countries of the Project Team there is a perception that a selection body on which the existing judiciary have a majority membership leaves itself open to the criticism that it is a self-serving body merely recruiting those prospective judges whom it favors and promoting favored judges from within its own ranks.
3. The body in charge of selecting and appointing judges must provide the utmost guarantee of autonomy and independence when making proposals for appointment.
4. It must be guaranteed that decisions made by the body are free from any influences other than the serious and in-depth examination of the candidate's competencies against which the candidate is to be assessed.
5. The body in charge of judicial appointments should comprise a substantial participation of legal professionals or experts (including experienced judges, academics, lawyers, prosecutors and other professionals) and could also include independent lay members representing civil society, appointed from among well-known persons of high moral standing on account of their skill and experience in matters such as human resources.
6. The body in charge of judicial selection and appointment could be the appropriate national Council for the Judiciary (or a specific committee or department within the Council for the Judiciary) or an independent national judicial appointments board or committee and that in those systems where the compulsory period of induction training is part of the recruitment and selection process, the relevant Academy, College or School of the Judiciary could play a major role by making recommendations in relation to the candidates which it considers should be appointed on the basis of their performance during the induction training.
7. The body in charge of the selection and appointment of judges must be provided with the adequate resources to a level commensurate with the programme of work it is expected to undertake each year and must have independent control over its own budget, subject to the usual requirements as to audit.

8. The body in charge of judicial selection and appointment must also have adequate procedures in place to guarantee the confidentiality of its deliberations.
 9. The body in charge of judicial selection and appointment must create a sufficient record in relation to each applicant to ensure that there is a verifiable independent, open, fair and transparent process and to guarantee the effectiveness of the independent complaints or challenge process to which any unsuccessful applicant is entitled if he or she believes that s/he was unfairly treated in the appointments' process.
 10. The body in charge of judicial selection and appointment should guarantee the effectiveness of the independent complaints or challenge process to which any unsuccessful applicant is entitled if he or she believes that s/he was unfairly treated in the appointments' process.

4.4 VILNIUS DECLARATION ON CHALLENGES AND OPPORTUNITIES FOR THE JUDICIARY IN THE CURRENT ECONOMIC CLIMATE (2011)

The European Network of Councils for the Judiciary, met in General Assembly in Vilnius (LT) on 8-10 June 2011

CONSIDERING THAT:

- I. The global economic crisis is having a significant impact in most European countries resulting in reduced economic activity, scarcity of financial means and rising unemployment.
- II. Most governments, confronted with limited financial resources, are responding by taking measures to reduce the deficit by means of spending cuts and reviewing the way the state budget is distributed in the long term.
- III. This situation is also affecting many European judiciaries which are facing a rising workload of cases, especially in civil matters such as insolvency/labour/bankruptcy and, for some, in criminal cases and at the same time are having to deal with budgetary restrictions resulting in staff cuts and, in some instances, a reduction in judicial wages.
- IV. The Council of Europe's Recommendation CM/rec (2010) 12 of the Committee of Ministers to Member States on independence, efficiency and responsibilities of judges proclaims that:
 - "[e]ach state should allocate adequate resources, facilities and equipment to the courts to enable them to function in accordance with the standards laid down in Article 6 of the Convention and to enable judges to work efficiently
 - and "[j]udges' remuneration should be commensurate with their profession and responsibilities, and be sufficient to shield them from inducements aimed at influencing their decisions",
 - and "[s]pecific legal provisions should be introduced as a safeguard against a reduction in remuneration aimed specifically at judges."
- V. Any economic measure, however transitory, likely to affect the judiciary must preserve the essential role of justice in a democratic society. The judiciary must continue to guarantee even in stringent economic situations the fundamental right of the access of every citizen to justice, effective protection of fundamental rights and the delivery of quality justice in a reasonable time.

- VI. An independent and efficient judiciary is of great economic value as it provides for a sound investment climate, necessary for the recovery of an economy.
- VII. The reduction of resources available to the judiciary may have undesirable side effects which would outweigh the intended effect of possible governmental savings. Delayed justice in important cases, such as public procurement, insolvency and labour disputes, may cause great damage to investment projects; it may delay the productive use of scarce assets; and it could undermine economic recovery.
- VIII. European judiciaries, inspired by the Councils for the Judiciary or similar autonomous bodies, should respond to the current economic climate by identifying the existing challenges and the opportunities to meet them appropriately.

RECOMMENDS

1. Special measures should be considered prevent and reduce the impact of the economic crisis on courts workload by the redistribution of human resources, the transitory reinforcement of the most affected courts and organisational remedies.
2. The available data suggests that European societies are not just facing a transitory crisis but are entering into a new economic landscape. It is necessary therefore to design and implement long term policies for the Judiciary adequate to this emerging situation.
3. The new landscape necessitates taking the opportunity to undertake measures aimed at improving the efficiency of the Courts, a situation not necessarily perceived and dealt with in better times to rethink the judicial map, to introduce and reform the procedures and the internal organisation of the courts and the integration of the innovative information and communication technologies which are essential features to increase this efficiency of the court system.
4. Investment in administration of justice and modern technologies and the strengthening of human resources in courts should be encouraged in order to make judiciary more resilient to future challenges.
5. Judiciaries and judges should be involved in the necessary reforms.
6. Councils for the Judiciary or autonomous Courts' Administrations should assume a significant role always taking into account and respecting the competences of the other powers of State.
7. Judiciaries should take all necessary steps to promote the public confidence in the courts. Openness, transparency, accountability, respect for the citizen, empathy with their situation, the development of courts' activity, the delivery of judgements and other judicial decisions in a clear and comprehensible language are essential features to achieve that purpose. Access to justice must be ensured including appropriate measures to assist and facilitate access to courts for persons of special vulnerability.

8. Systems of alternative dispute resolution can offer citizens a viable alternative method of achieving a peaceful and more comprehensive solution to their conflicts. Legislative measures to strengthen to role of mediation and conciliation and the establishment of adequate public services and an active role of courts in supporting and promoting these kind of alternatives is to be encouraged.
9. Those who are responsible for preparing draft legislation should be encouraged to promote clear and unambiguous laws to achieve greater legal certainty and to prevent avoidable legal disputes which increase the work load of the courts.
10. The independence of the Judiciary and of every single judge is to be preserved as a prerequisite for the delivery of a fair and impartial justice in protecting human rights and fundamental freedoms. No necessity for cost cutting can be allowed to undermine judicial independence. It is the essential task of Councils for the Judiciary to maintain and strengthen the independence of the judiciary.

4.5 LONDON DECLARATION ON JUDICIAL ETHICS (2010)

The General Assembly of ENCJ, meeting in London on 2-4 June 2010:

Considering that:

- the ENCJ has as its aim the improvement of cooperation between, and good mutual understanding amongst, the Councils for the Judiciary and the members of the judiciary of the EU (candidate) Member States;
 - the affirmation of shared principles and values on a European level strengthens mutual understanding and thus mutual confidence between judges in the European Judicial Area;

SUMMARY OF THE REPORT ON JUDICIAL ETHICS⁴ PRINCIPLES, VALUES AND QUALITIES

INTRODUCTION

The affirmation of principles of professional conduct for judges strengthens public confidence and allows a better understanding of the role of the judge in society. The judge's role in European societies has come to encompass not only being the 'mouthpiece' of the law, but also a creator of law. This dual function requires responsibilities and ethical rules. Moreover, our societies are demanding more transparency in the functioning of the public bodies.

Society's expectations of judges have caused the European Network of Councils for the Judiciary to reflect on the question of judicial ethics. It is concerned with striking a balance between the independence of justice [which is not a privilege], the transparency of institutions, the freedom of the press and the public's right to information. Judicial ethics have been addressed in a positive manner, so that the duties of the judge encompass the common, founding values of the judge's work and preventive principles (Part I) and personal qualities (Part II), in response to the public's expectations.

PART 1 – THE VALUES / MERITS

INDEPENDENCE

Independence is the right of every citizen in a democratic society to benefit from a judiciary which is, (and is seen to be), independent of legislative and executive branches of government, and which is established to safeguard the freedom and the rights of the citizen under the rule of law. It is up to each judge to respect and to work to maintain the independence of the judiciary, both in its individual aspects and in its institutional aspects.

INTEGRITY

The judge fulfils his role with integrity, in the interests of justice and society. He has the same duty of integrity in his public life and in his personal life. Two duties can result from this principle of integrity: the duty of probity and the duty of dignity or honour.

Probity leads the judge to refrain from any tactless or indelicate behaviour, and not just behaviour which is contrary to law. Courtesy and intellectual probity govern his relations with all the professionals within the justice system. Dignity or honour dictates that the judge exercises his functions by applying loyally the rules of procedure, by showing concern for the dignity of individuals and by acting within the framework of the law. Honour requires a judge to ensure, through his professional practice and person, that he does not jeopardise the public image of the judge, the court and of justice system.

IMPARTIALITY

The impartiality of the judge represents the absence of any prejudice or preconceived idea when exercising judgment, as well as in the procedures adopted prior to the delivery of the judgment. A judge ensures that his private life does not affect his public image of impartiality of his jurisdiction. He is entitled to complete freedom of opinion but must be measured in expressing his opinions, even in countries in which a judge is allowed to be a member of a political organisation. In any event, this freedom of opinion cannot be manifested in the exercise of his judicial duties. A just balance is struck between his rights and his obligations so that he may be impartial.

RESERVE AND DISCRETION

A judge avoids any conduct likely to promote the belief that his decisions are driven by motives other than the fair and reasoned application of the law. At the same time, a judge is himself a citizen and entitled, as such, outside the exercise of his judicial functions to freedom of expression recognised by all international conventions protecting human rights.

In politics, a judge, like any citizen, has the right to have a political opinion. His task, through his reserve, is to ensure that individuals can have every confidence in justice, without worrying about the opinions of the judge. A judge exercises the same reserve in his dealings with the media. At the same time, the obligation of reserve cannot provide a judge with an excuse for inactivity. He has an obligation to explain the law and its application in other than his own cases and to assume an educational role, when needed. When democracy and fundamental freedoms are in peril, a judge's reserve may yield to the duty of indignation.

In his private life

Like any person, a judge does have the right to his private life and to maintain a social life. It is enough if he takes some common sense precautions in order to avoid undermining the dignity of his office or his ability to exercise it.

DILIGENCE

Diligence is necessary to obtain and increase public confidence in justice. The judge is diligent, prompt in handling cases and never ceases to learn and update his knowledge. The judge makes every effort to conduct proceedings efficiently and to make his decisions without delay.

RESPECT AND THE ABILITY TO LISTEN

Society and its members expect a judge in the exercise of his functions to respect them and hear them. The judge interacts with the public, lawyers, his colleagues and administrative staff in a manner which is dignified, correct and receptive.

EQUALITY OF TREATMENT

Equality of treatment requires the judge to give everyone that to which he is entitled, both in the process and in the result of any case, through recognising the uniqueness of each individual. When the Constitution, national laws or international rules provide for it, a judge may apply positive discrimination; in other cases he ensures that equal treatment prevails.

COMPETENCE

Society is entitled to a competent judge with a broad professional ability.

TRANSPARENCY

Information on the functioning of justice and the presence of the public at judicial proceedings contribute to their social acceptance. Equal access of individuals involved in claims or defence to civil and criminal proceedings promotes transparency and enhances public confidence. The judge ensures this transparency thereby refusing to let the public hearing become a spectacle. In his private life and in society, the judge is always vigilant to avoid any conflict of interest.

PART II: THE QUALITIES OR VIRTUES OF A JUDGE

Confidence in justice is not only guaranteed by an independent, impartial, honest, competent and diligent judge. That confidence is also won by a judge who performs his role with wisdom, loyalty, humanity, courage, seriousness and prudence, and who has the capacity to listen, communicate and work. These requirements are not specific to the judge but they are essential to guarantee the right for everyone to have a judge.

WISDOM

Through his knowledge of the realities, of the law, and by his reasonable, fair and prudent behaviour, a judge shows his wisdom. This virtue enables him to be calm and prudent when dealing with disputes, and allowing him to discern and distance himself from parties and facts that he judges.

LOYALTY

A judge is loyal, both to the rule of law in general and to the rules of the organisation of the judicial system in his State. A judge loyally meets two requirements: not to exceed the powers entrusted in him and to exercise them. This loyalty cannot be demanded of a judge when democracy and fundamental freedoms are in peril.

HUMANITY

The sense of humanity of a judge is manifested by his respect for persons and their dignity in all circumstances of his professional and private life.

COURAGE

A judge shows courage in order to execute his duties as a judge and to respond to those seeking justice.

SERIOUSNESS AND PRUDENCE

The essence of the seriousness and prudence of a judge consists in his behaving appropriately. Seriousness means behaving respectfully during legal proceedings, being courteous, without excessive solemnity, and without inappropriate humour, thereby not compromising humanity. Prudence guides the judge both in his professional and private lives in order to maintain public confidence in the judiciary and courts.

WORK

LISTENING AND COMMUNICATION

Judges are expected to listen carefully to the parties at all stages of the proceedings. Listening implies absence of bias and of prejudice. This quality implies not only real open-mindedness and receptiveness but also the ability to call into question oneself. This listening remains neutral, distant but without being condescending or scornful, humane but dispassionate.

A judge ensures that he is able to communicate with others. Good communication is also present in his judgments (written or oral). A judge ensures that his judgments are intelligible and well-motivated.

And although the Danish Court Administration is still formally connected to the Ministry of Justice, this is mainly for administrative and practical purposes – the Minister of Justice has no instructive power and cannot change decisions made by the Danish Court Administration. Thus, the creation of the Danish Court Administration stands as a clear manifestation of the (organisational) independence of the Courts of Denmark in relation to the political sphere.

Budget

The Danish Court Administration plays an active role in the negotiations of the budget to be allocated to the judiciary. This happens through the channels of the Ministry of Justice. The total budget for the judiciary is part of the annual Finance Act.

The Danish budget procedure is based upon delegation of decision power and budget responsibility. The Ministry of Justice delegates the budget (appropriations) to the Danish Court Administration, which in turn allocates the budget to the courts. Ultimately, the economic responsibility for the judiciary lies with the board of governors of the Danish Court Administration. The board has the possibility to address Parliament directly with a budget proposal should they find that the appropriations are insufficient (This is provided for in the explanatory notes to the Danish Court Administration Act).

Allocation of resources to the 24 district courts is done using a budget model that is based on the number of received cases at the various district courts (the workload). As far as the rest of the courts are concerned, the allocation of resources is based on the budgets allocated the previous years.

The budget allocated to the individual court is used to cover salaries and other expenditures – rent, cleaning, refreshments at meetings, postage etc.

The budgets concerning IT and IT development projects are, however, centralized for all courts and are administered by the Danish Court Administration.

Brief history	A reference to the CSM has been made for the first time in Article 4 of Law 511 of 1907, substantially as an advisory body, and heavy administrative charges relating to the appointment of some judicial office within the judiciary. The CSM's took its first seat in the building of the Ministry of Justice. A few months later, the government Giolitti passed a bill (nr. 689/1907) in which it defined and framed the new body, although of course, the judiciary acted in the name of the King, its members could be construed as public employees. Its functions were roughly unchanged until the Republican Constitution, during which it was an administrative consultative body under the Ministry, and then became a self-government body of the Judiciary. After these reforms, the CSM was fully operational until 1959, overall as a result of law n. 195 of 1958. Actually the CSM doesn't perform (exercises) political functions and therefore plays no political role, properly understood. Indeed, the CSM does not pursue political goals. Under the Italian Constitution its functions hinge primarily on the administration of judiciary members. The protection of judicial independence and autonomy is also a significant task which is carried out by the CSM.

Brief history	The Council was established in 2002 as a result of a large-scale modernization of the Judiciary. Before that time, the Minister of Justice was fully responsible for the management and supervision of the Judiciary. The Minister had no authority where the adjudication of individual cases was concerned; this was the sole responsibility of the judges at the courts. Both Parliament and the Judiciary itself deemed it necessary to strengthen the independent position of the Judiciary. The governance structure of the Judiciary was changed, meaning that the boards of the courts were made integrally responsible for their own operations. In addition, the Council was established to bear full responsibility for the budget, coordination and supervision of the entire court system. The Council has no authority with regard to the adjudication of individual cases. Moreover, there was no longer a direct link between the Minister of Justice and the courts.
